

ABSTRACT OF THE INVENTION

A skin-care composition containing a protective component providing protection of the skin from environmental damage and regulating natural moisture of the skin; a skin firming component; and a barrier component. Thus, the composition includes at least one
5 component that supports the collagen structure, and at least one component that supports the body's own defense/repair mechanisms, and most preferably, at least one component that supports the skin lipid system.